DETAILED ACTION

1. Claims 1-2 are presented for examination.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

2. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

3. Claims 1 and 2 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Austin, US patent No. 4,935,962 in view of Fischer, US patent No. 4,868,877.

As to claim 1, Austin teaches a method for providing self-issuing certificates [col. 11, lines 42-44] in a device [card 30], the method comprising:

receiving, from an external source [card acceptor device 32] a request to generate a new certificate, wherein the request includes [col. 8, lines 5-6] an encrypted public key [public key e];

using a secure microprocessor [microprocessor 36] to generate a new certificate [Y] that uses [col. 8, lines 11-13] the public key; and using the new certificate in data transfers [col. 8, lines 30-33].

However, Austin does not teach the device in a telecommunication system.

Fischer teaches a device [terminal A] in a telecommunication system [col. 5, lines 60-65].

Therefore, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time of the invention was made to combine the teachings of Austin and Fischer because they both teach a data transfer using a certificate and the Fischer's teaching of application in telecommunication system would increase flexibility in communication data path [Austin's path 34].

4. As to claim 2, Fischer teaches a validity time [expiration data in fig. 5] in a new certificate.
